I'm sorry to hear that man, hopefully your feeling a little better now. Yeah honestly when I went down to two jobs I just about lost it. But I need to learn how to rebalance my life. There are more important things than working. Nichole and I will probably be heading to Tennessee for the last week in October, we could stop by and do dinner and hang out for a bit or something. That's really not too far off. You'll have to let me know when there's a more definitive date, I'd be happy to see that.

i was in a bit of a bad place for a while. really depressed, gained a lot of weight and didn't really want to be seen by anyone. that wasn't the reason i wasn't at toast's wedding though, i had to go to a conference and couldn't find a way out of it it's still crazy that you can even work that much haha. I'm sure you won't even know what to do with yourself if you only work one job. I'll probably graduate in 2-4 years the way things are going. Hard to tell but there's a rough timeline sketched out

I was actually starting to worry a little. I'm down to 2 jobs which has been nice. Thinking about going down to just the one fail soon here. I'd really like to go back to school before my 30s. You've got quite a bit to do if your attending grad school and teaching on the side so I can imagine that took some adaptation. I'm glad to hear that it's working out for you though. Do you have an idea as to when you will be graduating?

ah, sorry, i'm sure me not going to Toast's wedding made that worse. You're still working like 3 jobs then? things have been okay for me, just still working on my PhD and teaching. getting into a rhythm here took me a while but i think i have the hang of it

Oh good, I've tried getting a hold of you periodically and got nothing back so I was starting to wonder. Things are decent, just sticking to my old ways of working far too much. How's it going for you, close to getting your PHD?
