

United States v. Brendt Christensen
Case No. 17-20037

Transcript of Jail Call - July 3, 2017, at 5:00 p.m.

BC: Brendt Christensen

AK: Andrew Kieper

2:34

BC: So, I'm sure you've heard about everything by now.

AK: Yeah, there's been, uh, a few reports in the news. Things like that, so...

BC: Yeah, um, I can't talk too much about it other than that I hope it goes without saying that I'm innocent? I hope?

AK: I've always been, uh, big strong believer of the idea that everybody's innocent until proven guilty so I mean I've got your back, man, I mean...

BC: Thanks.

AK: It doesn't add up to me, is all I'm saying, so...

BC: No. It's complete bullshit. Um... They... All I can really say about it is that I think they're desperate to find something or do anything, and, yeah, like they, they haven't found a goddamn thing on me. Everything is completely ridiculous and circumstantial. But they're desperate because this is a political case now and it's everywhere, so they wanted something. You know?

AK: Gotcha. No, I hear ya, I mean...

BC: [Overlapping - Unintelligible]

AK: I hope the truth comes out. That's...I really do.

BC: Yeah, me too.

AK: I mean...

BC: I mean I hope that she's found and is ok and just is like, "Sorry, I was sleeping." I don't know. Like...

AK: (laughs)

BC: Like I mean that would be the best-case scenario, but I mean...

AK: Shows up and everything kinda comes to light. Yeah, that would be...

BC: That would be awesome

AK: ...most helpful.

BC: That would be awesome, but yeah, that's not gonna happen. Well, I assume it's not.

AK: Yeah.

BC: Um, I think it's...

AK: Probably not.

BC: ...probably safe to assume at this point that it's not going to.

AK: [Unintelligible] hopefully it does [unintelligible].

BC: Well yeah, I hope it does, but I mean it's like statistics, probability say that, you know, it's probably a long shot.

AK: Oh, don't think like that.

BC: Yeah, at least, at this point I'm just thinking of myself.

4:25