I talked with your sister yesterday since she won't answer your Mom. She was telling me all about her chronic ailments and I basically told her she needs to find work that she likes to keep her occupied and she'll feel better. She then went on about all that she is self-diagnosing and I'm guessing she's looking at trying to get on disability. I hope I'm wrong but after several conversations, I doubt it. Maybe you'll have better/some luck with convincing her she needs to be a contributing member of society and can still be her own person. I hadn't spoken with her for over a month because she makes me crazy and I told your Mom that I can't stand all the excuses so I don't talk to her often. On another note, I hope school is all you're wanting and that Michelle is doing well also. I look forward to hearing from you when you have some time to catch me up on your life. Your Mom was really happy you came for Christmas and the next time you come to see Michelle's folks, stop by here for 10 minutes so I can give you a hug.Author Deb Mitchell (100000862446989)Sent 2014-06-30 23:33:59 UTCBody We'll be thinking of you next week at his wedding. Body Thanks for the congratulations! Michelle and I both appreciate it.

Wow, thanks for warning me about this. This would have been terrible to have been blindsided by. I told Andrea my opinion of our situation in private and made it very clear that it was between me and her, but I guess not. My entire purpose of talking to her was to try and convey that there were two sides to this situation and that being in the middle of it might sway her to one side, and that she should try and see it from both my mom and dad's sides.

Body Hi Brendt,

First of all, congratulations of graduating! Secondly, your Dad called me tonight and was telling me that he needed to talk to you tomorrow to correct some misconceptions you have based on things your Mom has told you. In other words, everything you tell Andrea, she tells him.

Listen to what he has to say and be careful about what you say. He wants to set the record straight but it's as he sees it. You need to just remind him that you love both of them and would like to stay out of the messiness.

Have a wonderful day and beginning to the rest of your life!

Love,

Debbie

Body Hi Brendt,

I just wanted to touch base with you regarding your Mom. She is settling in okay but hasn't heard a word from Andrea and Matt never talks to her. With Mother's Day coming on Sunday I thought if you could call her or send her a card it would mean a great deal to her, especially now. Her address is 46 E Jackson St Apt 5, Hartford WI 53027. I'm not telling her about this message. She always talks about you after she talks to you on the phone and I know how much she'd appreciate the contact. I'm so glad you're doing so well and I'm sure you're looking forward to the move. I'm very proud of the man you've become but you'll always be the special little boy that we all loved so much. Have a great life! Mike says to say hi.
